From the legendary Sugar Ray Robinson to the hard-hitting Jake LaMotta, to the modern-day marvel Marvin Hagler, this book covers the lives and careers of some of the most iconic fighters in boxing history. These are the men who have defined the middleweight division, and their stories are sure to inspire and entertain any fan of the sport.

Sugar Ray Robinson

Sugar Ray Robinson is widely considered to be the greatest boxer of all time, regardless of weight class. He was a master of the sweet science, and his combination of speed, power, and agility was unmatched. Robinson won the world middleweight championship six times, and he also held the welterweight and light heavyweight titles.

Robinson's career was full of highlights, but perhaps his most famous fight was his 1951 rematch with Jake LaMotta. LaMotta had defeated Robinson in their first fight, but Robinson came back to win the rematch in a thrilling 13-round decision.

Robinson retired from boxing in 1952, but he made a brief comeback in 1955. He fought one more time in 1965, and he lost to Joey Giardello in a close decision.

Robinson died in 1989 at the age of 67. He is remembered as one of the greatest boxers of all time, and his legacy continues to inspire fighters and fans alike.

Jake LaMotta

Jake LaMotta was a tough, hard-hitting middleweight who was known for his relentless aggression. He was a six-time world middleweight champion, and he is best known for his rivalry with Sugar Ray Robinson.

LaMotta's career was full of ups and downs. He was knocked out by Robinson in their first fight, but he came back to win the rematch. He also lost his title to Rocky Graziano, but he regained it in a rematch.

LaMotta retired from boxing in 1954, and he went on to have a successful career as an actor. He appeared in several films, including "Raging Bull," which was based on his life.

LaMotta died in 2017 at the age of 95. He is remembered as one of the greatest middleweight champions of all time, and his story is a testament to the power of perseverance.

Marvin Hagler

Marvin Hagler was a powerful, undefeated middleweight champion who is considered by many to be one of the greatest fighters of all time. He was known for his incredible punching power, and he knocked out 23 of his 67 opponents.

Hagler's career was full of dominant performances. He won the world middleweight championship in 1980, and he defended it 12 times. He also defeated some of the greatest fighters of his era, including Roberto Duran, Thomas Hearns, and Sugar Ray Leonard.

Hagler retired from boxing in 1987, and he is now a successful businessman. He is remembered as one of the greatest middleweight champions of all time, and his legacy continues to inspire fighters and fans alike.

The Lives and Times of Boxing Middleweight Champions

The stories of Sugar Ray Robinson, Jake LaMotta, and Marvin Hagler are just a few of the many great stories that are told in this book. The Lives and Times of Boxing Middleweight Champions is a must-read for any fan of boxing history. This book is a testament to the power and passion of the sport of boxing, and it is sure to inspire and entertain readers for years to come.
